

In December, I sent a letter to all Member States requesting their suggestions on possible topics to discuss during the Conference. I am very glad to emphasize that more than 30 responses that Member States sent us. Based on these inputs, the High-Level Conference will focus on sharing of information, prevention of violent extremism, including preventing terrorist use of cyberspace and modern technologies, addressing the life cycle of the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon and the United Nations' role in promoting international cooperation.

The Secretary-General is writing to Member States inviting them to nominate a delegation led by the

