Centre for Studies and Research on Terrorism (ACSRT) have developed a joint training project for police, customs and other border-control officials in tools and methods for managing passengers, cargo and containers. The project consists of three workshops, to be held during 2014, on law enforcement, immigration, maritime security, civil aviation, customs processing, cooperation, intelligence, information-sharing and national coordination. The workshops provide training in accessing and using relevant international databases, as well as in good coordination and cooperation practices. The participating States include the Federal Republic of Nigeria, the

7. One of the most effective tools for assessing States' efforts is the onsite visit. Since 2005,

CTED has visited 100 States on the Committee's behalf. The visits are conducted in with numerous international partners, including IMO and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC). During the visits, the Committee, CTED and the relevant international
