Statement to the United Nations Summit on Refugees and Migrants

High Commissioner for Human Rights

19 September 2016

New York

	Distinguished Presidents

	Excellencies,
	This should not be a comfortable summit.
	While the leadership of the Secretary-General, and his fine report, should be acknowledged by all as well as the admirable efforts by Ireland and Jordan to achieve political consensus this summit cannot be reduced to speeches and feel-good interviews, a dash of self-congratulation and we move on.
	When millions of people see freedom's invitation only through the flapping canvas of a tent.  When they carry their children and possession on their backs, walking hundreds, perhaps
