the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons New York, 4 May 2015

Mr. Chairman,

I am honored to speak on behalf of the Group of the Non-Aligned States Parties to the

- 8. In this regard, while recognizing that States parties may pursue different ways to access sustainable energy resources and achieve their energy security and climate protection goals, the Group once again reaffirms that each State party, in line with its national requirements and in accordance with its rights and obligations under the Treaty, has a sovereign right to define its national energy and fuel-cycle policies, that, inter alia, includes an inalienable right to develop, for peaceful purposes, a full national nuclear fuel-cycle.
- 9. The Group stresses that multilateral approaches to the nuclear fuel cycle should fully take into account all technical, legal, political and economic implications and complexities surrounding this sensitive matter, and be economically viable, sustainable, non-discriminatory, predictable and transparent. Additionally, any decision thereon shall be made by consensus, taking into account the interests of all States, and above all, without any prejudice to the inalienable right of NPT States parties to develop research, production and use of nuclear energy national nuclear fuel-cycle in conformity with their obligations under the Treaty.

10. The Group emphasizes that proliferation concerns are best addressed through

- To express concern that certain unilateral, politically motivated restrictions and/or limitations seriously hamper the exercise by developing States parties of their inalienable rights to develop research, production and use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes, including to participate in the fullest possible exchange of equipment, materials and scientific and technological information for the peaceful uses of nuclear energy.
- To express concern that some States parties have set conditions that limit the export of equipment, materials and scientific and technological information for the peaceful uses of nuclear energy to developing States parties, such as concluding and bringing into force an additional protocol. Any such conditions contravenes article IV of the Treaty, which is explicit in that regard, leaving no room for reinterpretation or setting conditions for the peaceful uses of nuclear energy by non-nuclear-weapon States.
