

Changes in age structure and sustainable development in ageing societies

Tuesday, 4 April 2017 (noon–1 p.m.)
United Nations Headquarters, Conference room 4, Conference Building

An increasing number of countries in both the developing and especially in the developed world are already or approaching advanced stages of the demographic transition associated to ageing populations. Salient issues in this context include balancing work-family obligations, gender equality and the empowerment of women within the household and the labour market, the fiscal sustainability of social protection systems in the face of population ageing, intergenerational solidarity, income security, lifelong le
