

1. Introduction

1.3 While the treatment of these... The pressures of a mass influx of arrivals can fundamentally stretch the capacities of a Receiving State and can pose serious challenges to its own economic and social cohesion ~~as well as to its development and security~~. Furthermore, large movements also pose a challenge to the countries of origin, often leading to demographic and socioeconomic challenges.

1.5 The benefits and opportunities of... Our world is a better place [for] because of the contribution made by migrants... Displacement and irregular migration, in the context of large movements, on the other hand, present enormous challenges.

1.7 Large movements of refugees and migrants... ~~Neighboring countries also carry unfair burdens~~ Countries in close proximity to complex humanitarian emergencies are disproportionately affected.

1.8 We are determined...their human rights must be fully respected, regardless of their migratory status; and they must...In doing so, they should be empowered to positively contribute to countries of origin, transit, destination and return.

5.vii We will ensure that our responses...respect the human rights of women and girls bearing in mind the best interest of the child. We will...

5.xi We will ensure, on the basis of bilateral... We will explore the possibility of creating a UN Emergency Fund to respond fast and efficiently to emergency situations.

5.xii We will take steps to combat discrimination in our societies against migrants and refugees and to strengthen their inclusion in all spheres of life, highlighting their key and vast contributions to host societies...