Mr. Chairman

The Chinese delegation welcomes the discussion of the “Ways and means to further disseminate international law to strengthen the rule of law” under the agenda item “The Rule of law at the National and International Levels”.

Mr. Chairman,

As a staunch defender and active builder of international rule of law, China stands firmly committed to safeguarding the fundamental principles of international law and basic norms governing international relations with the purposes and principles of the UN Charter at the core, advocating multilateralism, and practicing international rule of law. Early this year, in his keynote speech at the IJL Office in Geneva, Chinese President Xi

Jinping proposed an answer to the universal question of “What is happening international law.

International organizations, the UN and its specialized agencies included, are major vehicles for the dissemination of international law. China hails the positive contribution of the UN Programme of Assistance in Teaching, Study, Dissemination and Wider Appreciation of International Law to the dissemination and exchange in the field of international law. We appreciate the efforts of the IJL Office of Legal Affairs and other IJL entities to facilitate the dissemination of international law. We welcome the successive launch of the UN Regional Courses in International Law and the UN International Law Fellowship Programme. The Chinese Government has been supporting the Programme of Assistance with annual donations to support the Programme's regional courses in Asia and Africa and its a richer and more sophisticated curriculum. It is now one of the major platforms dedicated to the promotion and dissemination of international law in Asia and Africa

China believes that enhanced awareness raising, education and research at the national level constitute an important means to disseminate international law. My government has taken a number of steps to effectively advance the research and dissemination of international law in China. These include online publication of international law-related information, public diplomacy and partnership between government institutions and academia democratic legislation, impartial judicial practice, and rigorous adherence to law; and to do its part for the promotion of democratization and rule of law in international relations.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.
