

Permanent Delegation of the United States to the UN

DEPARTMENT OF STATE
UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

820 Second Avenue, 13th Floor, New York, N.Y. 10017

Tel: (212) 370-2105/2106

Fax: (212) 370-2107/2108/2109/2110/2111/2112/2113

E-mail: usun@state.gov

http://www.state.gov/www/usun/un/unindex.htm

U.S. DELEGATION TO THE UNITED NATIONS

enshrined in the UN Charter.

Countries of the world, large or small, developed or developing, are all on equal terms, and no country is entitled to infringe upon the sovereignty of other countries.

However, acts of encroaching upon sovereignty such as the threat or use of force are prohibited by Article 2(4) of the UN Charter.

Article 2(4) of the UN Charter states:

"All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered."

Article 2(4) of the UN Charter is also known as the "no threat or use of force" rule.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a fundamental principle of international law.

It is a rule that prohibits one state from threatening or using force against another state.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is based on the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent conflicts between states.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to promote peace and stability.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to protect the rights of individuals.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of human rights.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of international law.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

The rule of "no threat or use of force" is a rule that is intended to prevent the violation of the principles of justice and equality.

At the plenary meeting of the 30th Session of the General Assembly in 1975, a resolution was adopted by the unanimous will of the member states, which called for dissolution of the "UN Command" in South Korea and withdrawal of all foreign troops so as to ensure peace and security on the Korean peninsula.

But, this illegal ghost entity, which is still overtly named after UN, is in the service of a hostile military against the DPRK and the Asian strategy of the United States, thus laying huge obstacles to maintaining peace and security on the Korean peninsula.

objectives of a single state, apart from the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter..

My delegation takes this opportunity to strongly demand once again that the "UN Command" in South Korea should be dissolved immediately in accordance with the