t CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Thank you, Mr./Madam Chair,

Madam Deputy Secretary General, Your Excellencies,

I have the honour to speak domehalf of Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, France, Germany, Indonesia, Luxembourg, Portugal, Sierra Leone, Sweden, Switzerland, the United a States; own country the Kingdom of the Netherland Verepresent the Justice Action Coalitiona multistakeholdercoalition of countries and partner organizations championing equal access to justice for all as part of SDG16

At this annualcommittee conversation about the rule of lawye wish to highlight three points:

- 1. The Secetary-General [new Vision for the Rule of Law and Guidance Note or Transitional Justice These guiding documents in derline that justice systems must put people at the center, addressing their needs and delivering fair outcomes for them
- 2. Theneed to invest innovation and leverage technology effectively ensure accessibility, inclusivity, responsiveness and accountability advance qual access to justice for all
- 3. The importance ocrossregional and crossectoral partnerships to achieve progress and close the justice gap.

Mr/Mme Chair,

To our first point: Wetake note with appreciation of Z ^ CE š CE Quew Vis CoEn for the Rule of Law, which commits the Organisation to reinfore the centrality of the rule of law in all its activities. This is fundamental to lasting peace the fulfilment of human rights and sustainable development.

We are particularly pleased to see the closeling ment of the Scretary-Generals new Vision with the principles of peoplecentered justice These have been retriculated for instance in the The Hague Declaration on Equal Access to Justice by 2064 that been endorsed by over 60 countries example, the new UN Vision tates that the Addip -t _and this implies Addiv

Furthermore, we commend the new Vision for its emphasis on the rotleconfule of law in advancing gender equality, as well as recognising all differsetate keholders within and beyond the UN whose enhanced engagement is essential in realising this visibles. multistakeholder approach is also an important feature of

We strongly believe that we cannot address poverty, inequalities, the impact of climate change and root causes of conflict and violence without peoplentered justice. We therefore call on all states to redouble their efforts and work closely with each other pon-state actors and the United Nations, implement the vision for rule of law and akeequal access to justice for all a reality

Thank you.
