

5. The Task Force members noted that health systems strengthening needs to be approached strategically, so that the urgent objectives of promoting health security are pursued

10. The Task Force members agreed that simulations and table-top exercises should be used to test the functioning of systems and processes, as well as to ensure accountability. A number of simulation exercises are underway

Ensuring health crises are a priority on global political agenda

14. The Task Force members stressed the importance of engaging with political processes to maintain health security as a priority on the global political agenda. Health should be integrated centrally into political processes, such as the G20, G7 and