

Article 8 of the UN Model – Transportation: Issues for the Committee

Geneva

18 October 2012

Ron van der Merwe/ Michael Lennard

2011 Annual Session Report

- 37. Several members expressed concern over the comprehensive changes proposed in the commentary on article 8. It was argued that the changes would widen the scope of the article and therefore needed to be discussed in detail in order to assess their implications.
- 38. Consequently, the OECD commentary paragraphs added in 2005, which referred to the income from directly connected and ancillary activities of shipping and air transport enterprises, were removed. ...

2011 Annual Session Report

- ... It was decided to include in the catalogue of issues for future discussion the term "auxiliary" in the context of the auxiliary activities that would come within the operation of the article.

Why this Note

- Purpose: to address the issues involved in elaborating the concept of “auxiliary” activities, including as proposed in the document prepared for the seventh session of the Committee.
- Paper (as adjusted following discussion, if necessary) and 2012 annual session report will assist the Committee to take the matter forward.

Current (2011) Commentary

- 7. Shipping and air transport enterprises - particularly the latter - often engage in additional activities more or less closely connected with the direct operation of ships and aircraft.

Current Commentary

- ... Although it would be out of the question to list here all the auxiliary activities which could properly be brought under the provision, nevertheless a few examples may usefully be given.
- 8. The provision applies, inter alia, to the following activities:

Current Commentary

- a) the sale of passage tickets on behalf of other enterprises;
- b) the operation of a bus service connecting a town with its airport;
- c) advertising and commercial propaganda;
- d) transportation of goods by truck connecting a depot with a port or airport.

Commentary Issues

- Current Commentary uses the term “auxiliary activities” a term superseded in OECD by “ancillary activities”.
 - is the OECD usage a more effective means of distinguishing these activities from the “preparatory or auxiliary” activities addressed in article 5 (4)?

OECD Wording since 2005

- “[a]ctivities that the enterprise does not need to carry on for the purposes of its own operation of ships or aircraft in international traffic but which make a minor contribution relative to such operation ...”

OECD Wording since 2005

- ... and are so closely related to such operation that they should not be regarded as a separate business or source of income of the enterprise should be considered to be ancillary to the operation of ships and aircraft in international traffic."

Differences

- UN Commentary says examples “could properly be brought under the provision”

Examples

- Bus services
 - UN Model refers to town to airport bus services.
 - OECD Model limits to bus services operated primarily to provide access to and from the airport for its international passengers.

- Some of passengers/ Cargo carried by other carriers

Examples

- Inland Transport legs of Int'l Transport
 - Dealt with more comprehensively under OECD wording.
 - UN Model uses separate examples (trucks, buses) and does not distinguish profits of various enterprises involved.
 - Addresses issue more broadly in para. 9 of Commentary – but only in relation to goods transport.

Examples

- Ticket Selling

- OECD elaborates more closely on which cases are sufficiently related – a useful clarification?

- Advertising

- OECD example covers magazines.
 - On-board advertising is becoming more prolific and diverse in kind.
 - Should there be more elaboration or are any such profits unlikely to be the subject of source State taxation anyway?
 - In any case, reference to “propaganda” outdated.

Examples

- Containers

- OECD deletes reference to containerisation as a “recent phenomenon” – clearly out of date.
 - United Nations Model does not include container fees in the para. 8 indicative list of auxiliary activities), though not being mentioned is not itself conclusive.

Examples

- Containers

- The OECD Model takes the view that “(p)rofits derived by an enterprise engaged in international transport from the lease of containers are usually either directly connected or ancillary to its operation of ships or aircraft in international traffic and in such cases fall within the scope of the paragraph”.
- A stronger presumption of inclusion than what currently exists in the UN Model?

Examples

- Containers

- The OECD Model adds a clarification:
 - “The same conclusion would apply with respect to profits derived by such an enterprise from the short-term storage of such containers (e.g. where the enterprise charges a customer for keeping a loaded container in a warehouse pending delivery) or from detention charges for the late return of containers”.

Examples

- Providing goods or services to other enterprises
 - OECD example on “pooling services” – a useful addition?
- Single use Transit Hotels
 - Hotels for “no other purpose” than transit passengers included in the ticket price.
 - Deleted in OECD Model – a worthwhile and practical exception?
 - Do they exist? If so clarification may be appropriate.
- Investment income
 - UN Model does not give exceptions when investment income is so integral to operations as to be directly connected – and thus covered by Article 8.
