

The System of the Terrorism-Supportive Ideology Counteraction in the Context of Russia's All-National Counterterrorism System

Distinguished Chair,
Dear participants of the briefing,
Ladies and gentlemen,

Thank you for the opportunity of addressing the audience of this high representation to share Russia's experience in countering such an evil as the terrorism-supportive ideology is. Our today's report is a follow-on to the discussion of the broad variety of counterterrorism-related matters. We had started this July at the 10th Meeting of Heads of Special Services, Security Agencies and Law Enforcement Organizations in St. Petersburg. It was on the margins of that highly recognized international forum that here a tentative agreement on holding this briefing event was reached, and the range of the issues, I am going to make a point of today, as outlined.

The terrorist manifestations recorded over the past several years had clearly highlighted the inadequacy of existent counteraction mechanisms against the level and the nature of modern-day terrorist threats. There is a growing world-wide trend towards a strategic shift from locally staged attacks
