INTRODUCTION

This report, drafted on the basis of statistical data and specific information supplied by the competent national offices, illustrates the status of women in the Republic of San Marino five years after the Fourth World Conference on Women (the Beijing Conference), highlighting the aspects related to the key areas of concern of the Beijing depend on their investments in human capital.

Education is always free of charge. All citizens of San Marino have equal access to education. Primary schools, primary and middle schools are all free of charge. Four to ten years of compulsory education. High school is also free of charge and contributions are granted to enrolment fees and cover expenses for books. Lastly, university students may also rely on scholarships and grants. The State allocates considerable amounts of money to education: in 1998, Lit. 17,366,059. The State expenditure per student

C - WOMEN AND HEALTH

The health and medical sector has always been extremely innovative. With no distinction as to sex or age, may benefit - free of charge - from all health services provided in the territory. Equally, all citizens may accede - always free of charge - to health services provided outside the Republic, on request and prescription of their treating physician.

In San Marino citizens are given assistance throughout their lives and can rely on high quality medical services. For particular diseases or surgical interventions which cannot be treated or carried out in San Marino, patients are free to choose the hospital or clinic they consider most appropriate outside the Republic.

Research commissions conducted studies on women on their health and quality of life. The State ensures female representation in a number of institutional bodies and non-governmental San Marino legislation. Since 1955 all citizens have equal access to health services provided by the State physician.

As regards health services, San Marino citizens can rely on high quality medical services. For particular diseases or surgical interventions which cannot be treated or carried out in San Marino, patients are free to choose the hospital or clinic they consider most appropriate outside the Republic.

Thanks to ongoing research, the State ensures female representation in a number of institutional bodies and non-governmental

All the above-illustrated actions draw inspiration from the Beijing Platform for Action stating that the "women's right to the enjoyment of the highest standard of health must be secured throughout the whole life cycle in equality with men".

Women over 40 are contacted personally to perform periodical screenings for the early diagnosis of potential diseases.

In collaboration with the San Marino Oncological Association, a psychological department was set up in 1998 to support women who had undergone a mastectomy. In 1999 a group therapy project was launched for women in pharmacological treatment.

Over the last few years, women's access to adequate, inexpensive medical services has been enhanced by means of appropriate awareness campaigns, especially as regards maternity, where efforts have been made to increase respect with the Beijing recommendations on reproductive health protection.

Currently, all expectant mothers are constantly monitored by a medical team composed of gynaecologists and midwives at the State Hospital. High-tech equipment is used for gynaecological diagnosis.

Moreover, the following courses are made available:

- information courses for pregnant women and puerperae;
- birth preparation courses;
- respiratory autogenous training and music therapy courses;
- gym courses in the swimming pool with trainer.

After having been appropriately informed and advised by the medical team, women are free to choose how to give birth in the hospital structure.

New-borns are given special attention. The paediatric team promotes a series of training meetings for parents and follows minors up to the age of 10. A supplementary paediatric service has been set up.

As regards services for children in day care centres and schools.

The current situation is the following:

Consideration is also given to the need to promote women's professions and most of all allow women to freely choose whether to work or take care of their babies. A new legislation is being drafted to identify effective measures for family support and protection. Agricultural industry schools are being thought so as to best meet the needs of both children and parents.

- women's health prevention programme, and in line with the Beijing guidelines, an old framework of activities, among others, have been implemented to help women acquire better knowledge of their health and hence make relevant decisions with greater awareness;
- annual gym courses for the elderly, arranged in co-operation with the Elderly Association;
- lectures on topics like nutrition, general health, alternative medicine, etc., in co-operation with the "Universidad del Salvador".

The Centre provides for the clinical, diagnostic and therapeutic follow-up of women over 40.

The Centre is equipped with a densitometer and ultrasound scan for the early diagnosis and treatment of osteoporosis, a disease typically affecting women in menopause.

Since 1998, approximately 2,000 clinical examinations (interviews and/or examinations) have been conducted on 5,554 women aged 45-85 and over, hormonal therapies and phyto-hormones have been prescribed for 700 and about 50 women respectively.

D - VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

Fortunately, the Republic of San Marino is not affected by certain forms of violence against women, like trade in women for sexual exploitation. Such practices are effectively thwarted thanks to a rigorous regulation of stay and residence permits granted to foreigners, as well as grass-root controls performed by the police authorities on the whole territory.

In this connection, Law No. 22 of 24 February 2000 has further strengthened security practices by expressly stipulating that foreigners not in possession of a regular stay or residence permit may be sent away by the police for reasons of crime prevention and protection of public order and allowed to re-enter the country only in the presence of a prior authorisation.

As regards female genital mutilation, there have been no cases linked to such practices.

The forms of violence perpetrated against women and girls may include violence within the family.

Importantly, as early as 1974 San Marino's penal legislation criminalised sexual freedom and sexual harassment on minors as offences against personal freedom and sexual integrity. The Criminal Code has redefined the terms "rape" and "abduction for a lewd purpose".

Importantly, the crime of "abduction for a lewd purpose" does attaching greater importance to the personal aspect. In other words, as opposed to the past, the above-mentioned crime is now considered violations of personal freedom.

The criminal action is generally started on demand of the victim if the crime has been committed by the natural or legal guardian or having been entrusted with the custody of the victim.

Importantly, the crimes perpetrated within the family are prosecuted and punished by the state even more rigorously.

San Marino Criminal Code stimulates, moreover, astly, in situations that are particularly difficult or at risk, the Minor Service, in collaboration with the Court, the social and health institutions and schools, provides family advice and consultation, psychotherapy and clinical monitoring.

E - WOMEN AND ARMED CONFLICT

San Marino has entrusted the safeguard of national security to the Police Department, composed on the one hand of two military corps (the Gendarmery, which includes several women, and the "Fortress Guards") and, on the other, the Civil Police, where the presence of female staff is remarkable and the Commander in Chief is a woman.

San Marino has several corps of women, which are exclusively female, such as the "Fortress Guards" and the Uniformed Militia. Such corps have a merely representative function and are called upon for exceptional occasions are the

The weakness of such innovative Law - aimed at promoting the economic and social progress of the country - is represented by the delay in operating a special "agency for promotion and economic development", to which applications for the above-mentioned facilities are to be addressed.

G - WOMEN IN POWER AND DECISION-MAKING

The last decades of the XXth century marked a significant turning point in the century-old history of the Republic (which will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 2001), as the passage of a number of legislative provisions affirming women's civil, political, social and economic rights.

In this regard, it is worth recalling that women in San Marino were recognised the right to vote by Law no. 17 of 29 April 1959 - such right having been exercised for the first time in the 1964 General Election - and only by Law no. 29 of 10 September 1973 were they recognised the right to Election.

In San Marino, women's effective participation in the political life is rather recent. While in 1995 - year of the Fourth World Conference on Women - the percentage of women in the Great and General Council (Parliament) and the Congress of State (Executive Council) was 11.00%.

In accordance with Law no. 42 of 21 May 1995, the activity through "standing parliamentary commissions" was the following:

- Commission I (responsible for: Constitution; Administration; Civil Protection; International Affairs): 3 women out of 15 members (20%);

Commission II (responsible for: Foreign Affairs; Migration; Information; Transports and Security): 2 women out of 15 members (13.33%);

Commission III (responsible for: Economy; Budget; Planning; Energy; Environment; Agriculture): 1 woman out of 15 members (6.66%);

Commission IV (responsible for: Social Affairs; Health and Sanitation; Education; Culture and Cultural Heritage; University): 1 woman out of 15 members (6.66%);

Commission V (responsible for: Justice): 1 woman out of 15 members (6.66%).

Over the last few years, moreover, a number of NGOs were established to foster female participation in all sectors of society, like the "Associazione sammarinese Sant'Agata, donne, arti, professioni, affari", while the "Futura" Association mainly deals with education for politics. As regards the principle of legal equality, the "3DS" Association is active together with the "Confronto" Association, set up recently.

H - INSTITUTIONAL MECHANISMS FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF WOMEN

The institutional reform planned by the Government, formed on 28th March 2000, includes among its priorities the incorporation, at a constitutional level, of all principles and rules concerning human and citizens' rights enshrined in the international treaties to which San Marino is a party, starting from the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights".

to a more direct relationship with the citizens. In 1976, San Marino established a Parliamentary Commission responsible for considering the measures necessary to put women on an equal legal footing with men.

The Beijing Platform for Action provided for a wide range of activities going from information to a more direct relationship with the citizens. In 1976, San Marino established a Parliamentary Commission responsible for considering the measures necessary to put women on an equal legal footing with men. The Great and General Council, is made up of ten members representing all political groups and political forces on a proportional basis.

This Commission has, since its creation, been mandated by the Parliament to regularly submit to the Parliament a report on its activity containing data and information collected, together with its own suggestions. This is not an ad-hoc Commission for equal opportunities like those established in other countries, but rather an evaluation instrument, with an advisory function within the Parliament, for the integration of those legislative provisions not expressly providing for legal equality between men and women.

This Commission, elected representing all political groups and political forces on a proportional basis.

This Commission is extremely active also in the field of public information and, on the occasion of the recent referendum, it requested that all citizens could receive all necessary information on the

on the occasion of the recent referendum, it requested that all citizens could receive all necessary information on the Citizenship Law by calling special telephone numbers
or visiting offices

Another enriching opportunity in terms of information and suggestions is represented by the participation in the works of the Interparliamentary Union of a national delegation composed of 13 members, including 3 women (23.07%). In 1995 this delegation included 2 women (15.38%).

The State Office for Economic Planning and Statistics regularly collects, analyzes and disseminates data on the number of women and men holding responsibility positions in the public and private sectors. Such data are periodically published in a Statistical Bulletin. The Office carried out and published a detailed research work on the situation of women in the Republic, which is now in enclosure.

I. HUMAN RIGHTS OF WOMEN

In the fulfilment of the commitments envisaged by the Platform for Action, the Republic has been promoting an increasing attention to the universality of human rights and fundamental freedoms, these issues are of particular attention in San Marino, which also seeks to offer its own contribution at an international level. For example, in 1998, on the occasion of the 50th Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Republic offered a financial contribution to a UN project concerning the dissemination of the UDHR in over 250 languages, this project is set forth in the Platform for Action.

A diplomatic delegation, which particularly follows the lead of the UN Office in Geneva, took part, last January, in the Regional Reviewing of the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action, organized by the Commission for Europe.

Since its admission to the United Nations in 1993, the Republic has actively followed the activity of the Commission on Human Rights and social issues participating in the drafting and cosponsoring the most important ones.

Since 1995, the Republic has followed the work of the Commission on the Status of Women and of the Committee on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. It is now taking part in the meeting of the preparatory committee for the special session of the UN General Assembly entitled "Women 2000: gender equality, development and peace for the twenty-first century".

Over the years, the Republic of San Marino has clearly promoted the role of women also in international relations, by appointing more women as Ambassadors to other States or as representatives in international organizations.

Information on the services and activity of the 10 State Departments is guaranteed by a considerable number of female professionals and a woman is in charge of the City Link, an office providing general information to the public.

Moreover, the fact that the present Minister of Information is a woman is worth mentioning.

K - WOMEN AND THE ENVIRONMENT

In San Marino, environmental protection is not dealt with according to a gender-based approach, nor are female resources particularly favoured. However, a growing awareness of the need for environmental protection and promotion has recently stimulated the establishment of some non-profit associations mainly led by women.

The recently approved Government programme, where sustainable development is a priority, provides for a thorough revision of legislative and administrative instruments in order to:

- draft a "Charter" of environmental rights;
- establish an "Authority" responsible for environmental issues;
- strictly protect natural areas;
- safeguard water resources and surface waters;
- guarantee air quality;

prevent noise

and develop environmental information, training and education activities, initiatives and an ad-hoc legislation assisting environmental associations and access to information and full participation in decision-making.

In compliance with the Principles of San Ma

As envisaged in the General Town Plan, in compliance with the framework of environmental protection, and in accordance with the principles of the Declaration of the Citizens' Rights and Fundamental Constitutional Order, the Republic promotes the full development of youth personality, without any distinction based on sex, protecting and supporting the legal rights of minors and their social concerns.

Law n. 49 of 26 April 1986 "Reform of Family Law" specifically addresses the case of custody, adoption, separation or divorce and educational point of view.

Under Law n. 83 of 28 October 1992 on the Judiciary, an ad-hoc body has been established to deal with cases of psychological and social malaise of minors. Its areas of activity include prevention, rehabilitation and social integration.

In 1997, the Government launched, under the aegis of the Captains Regent, a comprehensive "Youth Project" directed to young people aged 14-24 who participated in the organisation of some cultural events such as shows, artistic spectacles, film exhibitions, soccer, tennis, judo, athletics, table-tennis, awareness campaigns, debates on youth malaise and problems like drug and alcohol addiction with the participation of famous experts, and sports events. All these initiatives have been widely

Besides the activity of public institutions favouring the young (see sections B on education and health), also social centres, lay or religious associations, the National Olympic Committee and different sport federations pay great attention to youth problems.
